

TIGER

Butch Harmon and Tiger Woods at the U.S. Open

Tiger has had great instruction since he was a junior golfer. He has also had help from a sports psychologist, a physical trainer, and a few golf instructors for a very long time. In fact, when Tiger was winning his three U.S. Amateurs all of this professional help, including his parents, were called Team Tiger.

In the photo above, Tiger is being watched by his instructor Butch Harmon at the U.S. Open. It is important to remember that for there to be a champion like Tiger Woods, there are many people helping him and who have helped him in the past behind the scenes. Butch Harmon, Tiger's parents, his caddie, Tiger's college golf coach, Wally Goodwin, and countless others will never receive the credit and fame, but have helped Tiger in many ways.

John Wooden, the great basketball coach, once said, "The main ingredient of stardom is the rest of the team."

Remember next time you see Tiger win a golf tournament, there are many other people who have helped Tiger win the tournament.